

Boilerplate Bilendo

About Bilendo

Bilendo is a cloud-software that helps companies save resources that need to be spent effectively managing receivables. By using Bilendo, incoming payments can be accelerated and receivables risks can be controlled. This gives companies the opportunity to take more risks and build a growing business.

Bilendo-users also benefit from high quality centralized customer data, which facilitates decision-making. Bilendo started as a dunning-automation-system in 2015, that initially focused on SMEs on the German market. Since 2017, Bilendo has constantly expanded its services, responded to demand from bigger corporations and now partners with major finance and insurance providers to serve companies across all industries and primarily from the enterprise field. Together with their international team, the founders Markus Haggemiller, Jakob Beyer and Florian Kappert are on a mission to make credit management accessible and efficient for all companies through one smart platform that centralizes multiple processes.
